TIMELY TOPICS IN THE CRADLE OF LIBERTY

Whether you refer to Boston as the “Cradle of Liberty”, or as the “Hub of the Universe”, as Oliver Wendell Holmes so modestly put it, please join us in this great American city on October 11 for a spirited review of some very timely topics that affect all of our professional lives and undertakings. Lawyer-members of Eagle International Associates, along with distinguished claims counsel and professionals, will examine four subjects of current intense interest, some of which have some storied history of their own, and some of which are new enough to generate considerable uncertainty as to how they will play out in litigation in the coming years:

- Assault Claims, Sexual and Otherwise. Claims that alleged negligence in failing to prevent assaultive or neglectful conduct, in schools, nursing homes, houses of worship, camps and other settings can be among the most challenging cases to defend and achieve successful results. Listen – and participate – in a panel discussion of why such claims are fraught with potential danger and how best to confront and ameliorate those dangers.
- Artificial Intelligence. Hardly a day goes by without reading or seeing or hearing some new story in the media about a future world suffused with Artificial Intelligence, the dreaded “A.I.” What is it? What is it up to, and where are we seeing its influence? And, most pertinent for our discussion, what does it mean for the legal and claims professions, and what do we need to start thinking about in order not to get blindsided (or simply replaced) by it?
- Professional Liability. It never goes away. In a world increasingly dominated by “experts” and other professional service providers, the potential for professional liability claims seems never to have been greater. Our panel of experienced speakers – professionals themselves – will identify and discuss some pertinent topics in the field and will happily invite your comments and questions as well.
- Lithium-Ion Batteries. As we turn increasingly to electric-powered . . . everything (cars, bikes, lawnmowers, etc.), the prevalence of lithium-ion batteries is becoming more and more obvious. Is there a hidden (or not so hidden) potential fire hazard there? Is the science behind such claims “junk-y”? Are we seeing more claims simply because there are more batteries out there? Hear from folks who have some actual experience in an emerging area of product liability law so you have been alerted to this newly trending topic.
