Eagle International Associates, Inc. will open its seminar with a panel discussion on humanizing the corporate defendant. The panel will discuss the techniques and strategies useful in the effective defense of corporate defendants. We will focus on issues dealing with the perception of corporate defendants and the unique risks and biases encountered defending these types of defendants.

Next we will present a master class in mediations. The panel will include both attorneys and insurance insiders who will discuss effective skills and techniques necessary to obtain favorable outcomes for clients. This will include pre-mediation matters such as discovery and disclosure issues, as well as techniques to use at mediation. Discussions will include how to use the mediation as well as the mediator to obtain the best result for your client, as well as what can or should be done if an agreement is not reached at mediation.

Next we will deal with cyber security threats and privacy issues. The panel will discuss steps companies should proactively take to protect themselves against risks of compromise or loss of personal data, intellectual property and other proprietary information. This session will cover cyber security issues and the liability exposure that can arise from these threats. We will discuss not only how to prevent risks, but also how to respond in the event there is a cyber security loss.

Lastly, there will be panel discussion on settlements. This discussion will include tips of the trade including pre-settlement expectations, preparing clients for a settlement, how to negotiate a settlement, as well as settlement agreements or clauses useful for specific situations.
