Are You Ready to be Entertained in Philly?
Rocky isn't the only one with a knockout punch!
Join insurance industry executives as we discuss the latest and greatest effecting the industry.

Whether you hold the National Treasure, went to school with Rocky, or believe that you're Invincible from damages, you won't want to miss the next Eagle multi-media presentation on September 12, 2018 at Le Meridien Hotel in the heart of Center City Philadelphia. Come join us for an afternoon of insightful, entertaining discussions as we examine issues regarding the fiduciary rule, schools and damages.

Our panel will discuss the background and current status of the fiduciary rule and how it impacts compliance and litigation/arbitration, as well as specific "best practices" for compliance departments to minimize regulatory and litigation/arbitration risk.

In today's climate, schools and their employees are seemingly being held to an increasingly impossible standard. It is no longer enough to stand "in place of a parent," today schools are expected to do more than most parents and to do it better. "Protect my child from guns." "Junior is getting bullied by my neighbor's brutish kid." Meanwhile, the English teacher is reputed to harbor a grudge against minorities, last year's dean of boys is now a woman and, oh, yeah, the janitor is a former (and possibly current) child molester. Of course, special ed students need independent plans, locker rooms need to be segregated (or do they?), everyone is slipping and falling in the auditorium and campus police are sleeping in their cars in the parking lot instead of maintaining security. This panel will explore the hot and intractable issues confronting schools today. What are the special factors to be considered in evaluating school claims? How do immunities help or hurt and how can they be used effectively. What are the ethics and legal rules impacting representation of both schools and their employees? We will examine these questions and discuss how administrators, claims professionals and defense lawyers can better defend and resolve these difficult claims.

Damages . . . What's recoverable? Frequently, claims handlers, and outside counsel, encounter the question of what damages are recoverable under certain causes of action. Are attorney's fees recoverable in medical claims? When do damage caps apply? What about punitive damages? Our panel will answer these common questions by providing a roadmap to allow you to determine what damages are recoverable, and when.

As always, this year's Eagle conference will be led by very experienced lawyers and will feature a highly talented and diverse group of claims professionals who have all achieved great success in their positions. In addition, Eagle will offer its usual hospitality, featuring good food, good drink and its unique welcoming spirit and friendship. We hope that you will come and participate and learn and enjoy. We look forward to seeing you on September 12th at Le Meridien in Philadelphia.
